

100 Christian Motivation Proverbs:

~Cory Morrel

- 1. If you touch the sea with the test of your heart, even your knowledge will fish courage.*
- 2. He who inclines an ear the wisdom of his master, even his eyes will be the authority of his own teacher.*
- 3. If you try 6 times 1 way failure, on the 7th attempt your success will be heaven a 1,000 ways forward.*
- 4. The pool of enemies is a bath of enemies and a mouth stirs an acid of trouble to melt peace like salt.*
- 5. If you honor your work the kiss of compliment, even your reward will be a bride of gold.*
- 6. If you fall in a hole through the pit of ridicule, discretion sinks like sand, but righteous council is a ladder to climb to glory.*
- 7. The eyes of temptress are stabbing knives to to a fools a heart, but a righteous man wise understanding will be delivered through the ages.*
- 8. If the heart isn't cared the boat of the ocean like its captain, even the ship will submerge the depths of sin.*
- 9. Self-Image is the glamor of idolatry, and luxury the hypocrisy of a skeleton, but a doer of faith earns trust in a flock of kingdoms.*

10. The fingers can be armies of betrayals to hands and quick to war against the body, but the spirit is the sword that can charge strength before dangerous forces.
11. A fool assumes there nothing wrong, a believer knows there is absolute evil, and one of faith donates his spirit to pour in the blessings of his people.
12. A ruler judges tyranny by the authority of lightning, but a Lord speaks of parables of power in the salvation of his worth.
13. Loyalty is the beginning the worship, but a fickle emboldens disharmony among the princes of the kingdom before the leader.
14. By faith the blind are servants to one last, but by works of sight the slaves are known to be first.
15. If the sand of a sinner unforgives the penalties of his crimes, unrepent by prayers, even his hydration will still be thirsty unauthorized exoneration.
16. *Should the wicked cross the flames of the wick of the lamp;
through they don't see the light in darkness, even their sins will melt like the hell of wax.*
17. If a wise man does not deceive a nation, but his own neighbor is praised by a song, he will still receive a gift welcomed compromise.
18. Should trouble hammer a town destruction, skepticism isn't invisible, but by adjudicated insecurities staff of iron lights the path to rebuild sovereignty.
19. He walks the the steps of unreal instructions, even the stones of this thoughts, are miles behind the unconsidered truth of the ministry buried his feet.
20. If a man plants his hands in the soil of his own garden, even the food of his works will harvest the riches of his inheritance for a lifetime.
21. If the iron of man's feet is below the earth of his mind, even his mind will beneath the bronze of his eyes to sharpen the ironworks.

22. The marriage of a bride and groom is like a waterfall on their wedding day, and the falls pour blessings on the riches of their bodies many years descended from doves.

23. The sun can save during a winter, and a fire can warm a poor man's riches all throughout all the rest of his days.

24. A house can proclaim a master, but a church can ordain a minister and he who counsels the house of the saints is the chief of rulers.

25. He who fishes the knowledge of the his hands, his arms will govern and cabinet officials on the sand before the rising dawn netted a fortune.

26. If the explorer finds fortune in a kingdom and wears symbol to honor his people around his neck, even his body will be the lion's mein of his house.

27. Faith comes eaten at the eyes by winter, and responded by the mouth a spring and a shield of parables covers the thoughts of scribes' words with feathers.

28. Season your body with sky not by the bread of the earth but by the blood of the spirit, which will salt the spirit power in the light of the harvested favor.

29. If you pour your wineglass wine from the sun, even your gauntlet will glow a fire of power, and the wine will be unfermented knowledge of God.

30. *Who who greets one man at the doors of at the church, seems he's unsuddenly
A well-greeted self-respected approval honors a thousand crowds by the table.*

31. If your worship between courage encouraged of a courtship is a dictatorship, even the worship of the relationship will be dictatorship sunken a crashed ship.

32. *The blinds of window closed the unread gospel are unlearned destiny of wisdom;
but a punctured unwatched sight unseen the words of the ministry is a beam in the eyes.*

33. He who fences he neighbor, seems he also fences his brother and a father that shield son from council, blocks a wall from wise followers.

34. If a word of a thought is unseasoned any pleasant thanksgiving, even the festive celebration of a prophet's journey returned home will be unwelcomed cold.

35. The crimson of sinners is the red of blood, but the fire of righteousness is scarlet light, and a burgundy wine of grapes to the winepress to tend the garden.
36. The legs of the table cannot stand to feed the poor man unless the blessed man, stands to champion for the rights of his salvation, even he'll stand for richer liberty.
37. The way righteousness is the beginning of justice, and its peace fuels security, while vindicated righteousness is a route that omits ostentatious iniquity.
38. A rock break an army at the sling of thrown at head, but the head of a ruling, an expert that bears fruit of understanding beats the army with the bread of wisdom.
39. If a tree bears fruit even its roots will be strong, and will also bear knowledge; knowledge will supplicate its descension through the generation of multiplied fields.
40. The hand of the builder is the hammer of God, and if its nails are rain of fire, even the storms will poison the chambers of the world and will dispense helpers of wrath.
41. If an ugly man looks the reflection of of lake today like crystal glass, tomorrow his image will be in the mirrored marriage of wife.
42. Boasting charge of action will gain an audience, roaring against a nation will scare crowd roast untrusted their credence the challenge of rule.
43. If a man puts on this thinking of the gospel his entire world turns his head into lamp of thought, and his thoughts shine a power to respond to the needless.
44. He who seems he gains little in crumbs, attracts more in seeds and who suddenly grows a lot in grain, seemingly is named among the stars.
45. He he lends a helping hand will save the earth the depth down in deed, and the word is the character that is planted in the word of the soul.
46. If the fools stands on a bridge, even his thought will collapse the bridge like a rock and his travels will suspend him displaced lost back to the beginning.
47. The grain of the deed is as worthy as the righteousness corn for the fields, and the bread of the spirit harvests the payment of the lender salted his fortune.

48. He who walks faintly forwards towards his goals, unlistening to wise council trips on his own sandals and faint falling backwards to the ground a lesson hit.

49. The thoughts of a fool are an unspeakable animal robbed in gold, the character of a brave follower heed unthinkable instruction, counseled in treasure sold.

50. Should the trust of a robber be entitled to protect the property of a worshipper's gospel in their hands, even the fruit of their mouths will backslide rotted deception.

51. If man obeys his mother or father, the child will still be within him, but if a husband speculates courage and observes his wife she will honor his manhood unwithheld.

52. If days shorten before the end of the rope the line will extend its length further ways still moving forward, but the line of the climber's life will increase bigger.

53. He that fathers the fallen will gather much greater good gardened, and he that welcomes the weakened unwaked wonders walks works wisdom.

54. A believer assumes his lies by overthinking his unresearched ignorance, but an experts knows his presented case the unaccept concept of untaken afterthoughts.

55. If by a weakened unprovided good word to calm an ached heart unthreads the cords of its fruit refused to be binded, even love will be unchained.

56. If the chariots of riders have fire in their hearts, their horses will protests and by fire of their grievances will escape and the chariots will throw a shoe of its wheels tossed a wasted mind.

57. Even a sword is coward than the peacemaker whole holds the nations by the throat of the pen and rules with good intention a saint of security.

58. Every good and blessed word is like grace ripened from a tree ready to be plucked, and for every good word read, more wisdom grows ready to be taught.

59. Wisdom will flow like water in a river going one way and out the other, and Wherever knowledge goes it will fill the cities with life populated with God.

60. Every saint is an instrument of love; the enormous love you have for your helper, the brighter power of hope you are blessed to be baptized in the glory of its truth.
61. If you make your body temple of hate, even the earth you stand on will be body of hell and the earth will leave you any chance of hope from baking bread of your soul.
62. The teeth do a lot of chattering, and so do noise of a choir that sing among the clouds, like the voices of instruments fly, songs of light zoomed across the stars, a sound of thunder.
63. If you eat fruit of tree eaten for your spirit, even the plant of your body will bury the power of life inside your unborn gifts unseen inside of you amazed.
64. If the grass of the meadows is sharp as lightning vomiting from the sky, even the sword of the soldier will be deadly like the poison to the plant on the hill.
65. A gospel of unparticular knowledge is a noble novel of secrets, and even the mouth of the writer who untells its bold works delivers it, and authors its story.
66. *Those that enter the gate of the house will find an inheritance; and he
He who advanced through the door of the post will have wealth collected to the patient.*
67. Many will walk the short path and find the wrong way, but those that find the long path worked unended in a long time seeks the highroad toward salvation of appointed victory.
68. A tidal wave fierce rip currents storms a nation of armies, and the hand of the Lord divides the conquerors his wrath with the rocks of the earth quaked with deliverance.
69. If you awake assuming conception belief there is no trouble; trouble will follow follies of unassessed imposed consequences, and vague dangers unsensed.
70. He who wakes before the sun even after the sun sets his fun will defeat his day left remain in shame, abandoned him astray the day gone his glory unworked done without him aged.
71. When the hands wrinkle and brittle like a sponge, even the bread that crusts curves as the cracks of the broken rocks, and will be messages of the earth divorcing the dweller.

72. If salt seasons the sour taste the mouth, even the sin that settles beneath the undertone the pillar of the temple will fade its light the understatement of unshown offenses.
73. If you count the numbers of the stars, the stars of the sky will watch the time of the counter's lifeline and will not deplete the sand in his heart all time of his days.
74. The animals of the wilderness are immeasurable and so is the power of God, who sharpens the enjoyment of the greater thrill of the hunt for food immense.
75. If put your trust in the money of foolish people's attitudes, the betrayal of their unattended service to accompany you undeserved kindness is a shadow chased on the wall.
76. He who accounts the countenance of indulgence conferred his supplemental conference among the council of his people, lights the confluence of all his credence.
77. If a dog in impetuous like its master, without the master taming patience to its student, even the pupil will become an animal and all those taught tricks of insight will be reversed.
78. If an apple is declared the river of man's heart and his hand spills wine, even the valleys will be fat its luxury fruit of the field and hope will prosper.
79. If a man's body walks inside the fire of a flower, the flower will be spring of his body, and his spirit will produce a temple of blessings worth made worked temperance.
80. The harder of the heart, the heavier the martyr will harken a mouth of farther freedom, but lighter is a good song that brightens years of extended days, joy of pleasant peace.
81. He who finds the sheep in the wilderness will discover a lion in the sun, and a field of wheat gold and treasure waiting for him to anoint his vessel in ceremony.
82. Walking on a beach on seashells cracked to feet are nails piercing the skin, and an agony throughout the ages uncrossing to reach toward the unheated cool ground.
83. If you bath in the sun all the hour of its illuminative quintessence even its undiscovered face from its power will shower you with a healing effect of unimaginable blessings of glory.

84. A trap that captures a helpless animal is a sinister trap of destruction, and the hold thickens the the plotted un-acquainted details of the trick burdened.
85. If you dress on hell on your mind, going throughout all the unknown ways of your days you have not stopped at, even your unclothed attitude will be smacked naked a misery.
86. If you proclaim the unquestionable endurance of desirable faith, even your salvation will be a grove of inheritance, and its pleasure you will inherit property.
87. If you eat a book of Christianity 24 hours in a day, 7 days a week, from dusk until dawn, even the wisdom of your faith will nourish and ingest a kingdom of breakfast in your mouth.
88. If you lose on shoe on one foot, missing the other shoe on the other, then both feet are naked coverings. Better it is to have shoes on both feet than no faith at all in God.
89. Better it is to believe in the worth of watched time, for even your eyes will outgrow aging then bottled a message the rusted prophet undoubting incontrovertible fate tested an un-acknowledged late.
90. Like a rotted piece of meat and a fish dissolved in the pond, rulers corrupt and kingdoms fade, but the walls of the wisdom of God are as strong as an Ox and its strength rocks eternal.
91. If an accused man is unabdicated prison bars even his heart will be persecuted his words stripped the stripes on his speech and his statements will be government to council wolves.
92. If the clouds over your head leak valleys of rivers, even the brain of the atmosphere will thunder authority above the rest of the backslided earth boasted the most high.
93. The herd of the farm is the head flock heart of the flock. The Lord God that is firm, noble and wise like firm literature relieved smiling takes stock in the house.
94. If you squish a critter under your feet like the government politics of sin, even the army will cease the wicked march, approaching the antiquity of antagonism.
95. Madness comes in 7 ways the earth rated R. They are ridicule, reprimand, resentment, retribution, retaliation, repugnance and repudiation.

96. If you go in the volcano as an enslaved sheep but survive the paradise of spring with the crown of a lion, then shown courage is the blessed believer all the days of their faith.

97. If you read the ministry encouraged by the church of the Lord God our Father, even the mirror of your own image will be modeled reflecting the landscaping of the shrubs.

98. If you swallow unrepented forgiveness of sin confronted by your accuser, even the weight of the world on top of your head will sink below your heart, and will collapse.

99. He who opens eyes in the morning before his wife waking up, seem a supposition that he's opening the blinds to open its eyes before the bride of the day before him.

100. If you cut off a hand that is naive, the asunder joints of the body, and discordant of the arm, and bury it in the ground, even the authority of the dead will be separated from the living. Though like the river of he who planted the hand that gardens the spring divided the flow of the land will turn to dust, even the drought of the canals and lakes will sin astray insubordinate of the keeper but will replenish through in the due harvest.

